The Child May Die, and, If She Surrives, Will Be a Cripple-The Woman May Becover-As She Had No Money, the Police Suspect an Attempt at Suicide.

Mrs. Mary Bryan, who says that she lives at 12 Charles street, Bridgeport, Conn., nearly sacrified her own life and that of her two-yearold child. Elizabeth, by falling to get out of the way of a down-bound Columbus avenue car at Bixty-first street about 1 A. M. yesterday. Mother and child are now in Roosevelt Hospital, the woman with a broken leg and general bruises, the little one with a mangled foot and other injuries, the seriousness of which cannot yet be determined. The doctors believe, however, that the child will die. If she lives she will go through life scarred and with only one

The cable car was about half filled with passengers as it came down on the midnight trip from the upper terminus. The gripman Peter Campbell, had turned the grip to a full clamp on the cable after passing the dangerous Boule-vard crossing at Sixty-sixth street. This is usual, as Columbus avenue, from Sixty-sixth street to the cable curve at Fifty-third street, is practically deserted late at night. The shadow of the elevated railroad darkens the car tracks. but there is no reason why anybody exercising ordinary caution should not cross the tracks there in safety. It seems hardly possible that Mrs. Bryan should not have seen the down-bound cable car as she approached to cross the avenue from the we-t side. There was no up-bound car mear to confuse her. It may be that she mis-judged the distance of the car or the rate of speed at which it was moving although its speed was only about seven miles an hour, speed at which it was moving, although its speed was only about seven miles an hour. Whatever the reason, she was on the track when the car reached the corner. Until it was too late it did not occur to the gripman that she was in any danger. Two steps in either direction would have saved her. When the car was almost unon her he shouted. Then the woman seemed to realize her peril, for she shrieked, but did not move from the track.

She was struck by the left curve of the front platform and thrown off to one side against one of the elevated road pillars. Whether she dropped the child as she was struck, or whether the girl was thrown forward by ithe sheek, no-body knows, but as the car went on it dragged the little one with it. Campbell, faint and sick had not the power to loose the grip. He strained at the wheel, but the car kept, on until two of the passengers, George M. Ducker and Aaron Cohen, ran out upon the platform, threw him as de, and twisted the grip wheel around, bringing the car to a stop twenty or thirty yards from the spot where the woman had been run down. Meantime there was confusion in the car. Half a dozen women passengers became nysterical. The men jumped from the rear platform and ran back to where Mrs. Bryan lay unconscious. Ducker, Cohen, and the gripman ran around to the side of the car, where they found the little girl, covered with blood and cirt, planed under the forward wheel. Efforts to get her out were unavailing until the men hal set their shoulders to the car and moved it until the wheel rolled from the child's foot. Then Road inspector Henry Bischoff picked her up in his arms and ran with her around to Roosevelt Henrylal, two blocks away.

Meantime Policemen Hawthorne, Robinson, and Craig of the West Sixty-eighth street station rang an ambulance call, and presently an ambulance came for Mrs. Bryan, who still fay unconscious at the foot of the pilar which she had struck the pilar she would undoubtedly have been killed. When the ambulance had taken the woman was allowed to proceed wit
